

Rental Income Form

Please complete the following form and correct any erroneous information.

Complete this form if you have a rental property. If you have multiple rental properties, print and complete this form for each of your rental properties. With the exception of the items labeled with a (), there is no need to supply supporting books and records (although feel free to supply them if you wish). We may, however, ask to examine your books and records if we feel it necessary to do so in order to provide us with the assurance we need. Where items are marked with a (), please provide explanations, calculations, and supporting documentation as appropriate.

5. Capital Expenditures

Certain types of expenditures are considered to be of a capital nature and may be deducted from income only through capital cost allowance. Capital expenditures include the original purchase price of the rental property and the related legal costs, and the purchases of refrigerators, stoves, etc. that are rented with the property, and their replacements. Capital expenditures also include major repairs that extend the useful life of the property – a new roof, a new elevator. But periodic, routine, recurring expenditures – painting, glass replacement – are not considered capital expenditures and can be deducted as Maintenance and Repair.
